ARMY TRUCK KILLS BROOKLYN BOY AT CAMP WADSWORTH

Wagoner James E. Murray Is Thrown From Seat When Mules Bolt on Steep Grade.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., March 29.—Hurled from his seat when four mules drawing an army truck became unmanageable and ran away, Wagoner James E. Murray of the Supply Company, 106th Infantry, received a broken neck and died instantly. He was twenty years old and lived at No. 298 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn.

Murray was driving the mules down a steep grade when the load off team became frightened at a passing train pulling out of the Saxon Station, two miles from here. They shied and reared up, causing the pole of the wagon to break. Although he had no control over the animals, who started down the incline at a good gait, Murray remained in his seat. As the wagon went over a rut he lost his balance and was thrown out, the reins twisting about his body.

Murray was dragged almost 100 feet before he was able to release himself, and then fell directly under the wheels, which passed over his neck. Wagoner William Sheerin and Private William Devlin, who were on the wagon, jumped to safety a few seconds before Murray met his death. They summoned an ambulance from the base hospital and the surgeon who responded said Murray's death was instantaneous. His body will be sent home for burial to-day.

The mules continued their flight for half a mile, when they were brought to a stop by a mounted artilleryman.

During the target practice with fixed bayonets at the Glassy Rock mountain range yesterday afternoon Private Joseph Amato of Company C, 106th Infantry, accidentally shot the middle finger of his right hand off. He was adjusting the bayonet and pulled the trigger. The injury was dressed at the base hospital here.

Capt. W. B. Williamson, formerly of the Pennsylvania National Guard, in civil life a member of the editorial staff of a Philadelphia paper, has been appointed intelligence officer of the provisional depot for corps and army troops. Capt. Williamson was transferred here from Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., last January, and for a time served as casual officer. He relieves Major Andrew Tuck, who in addition to his duties as depot adjutant was acting intelligence officer.

Capt. Williamson will occupy the same office as Capt. Starr, intelligence officer of the 27th Division, until the latter organization breaks camp for service overseas.

223 DIE IN WEEK IN THE CAMPS HERE

Health Conditions in General Are Described as "Very Good."

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Although health conditions in general among the troops training in this country are described in this week's report of the Division of Field Sanitation as "very good," deaths among the soldiers increased from 180 the week before to 223. Pneumonia increased in the National Army and regulars, but in the National Guard all epidemic diseases were declining.

Deaths in the Regular Army last week were 86, as against 71 the week before; in the National Guard 26, as against 28, and in the National Army 117, as against 81. Seventy-three of the deaths in the National Army and seven of those in the National Guard were from pneumonia.

Only seventy-six new cases of pneumonia were recorded from the National Guard camps, but in the National Army camp 287 new cases of this disease were reported, as against 258 the week before.

In the National Guard camps the sick and death rates are remarkably low.

RECRUITS FOR TANK CORPS

New Organization Bringing Many Who Love Adventure Together.

The German drive in France has so speeded up enlistments here that only two companies are now lacking for the Tank Corps, U. S. A., known until a few days ago as the 10th Engineers.

This organization is made up of men familiar with machinery and accustomed to adventurous pursuits. Recruits undergo only a few weeks of intensive training, and therefore will soon be in the fighting. Several companies have already crossed. One thousand men are being drilled at Camp Stead, Gettysburg, to man tanks of the new American design which have been built.

The Tank Corps includes all classes and is held together by a spirit of patriotic service and a love of hazard. Scores of its members are wealthy young men noted as explorers, big game hunters, aviators, automobile racers and football stars. Men schooled to meet emergencies quickly are particularly desirable.

Applicants are being examined by Capt. H. H. George at No. 723 Sixth Avenue.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG K. OF C. HOUSE AT CAMP UPTON

Troops Make Hard Fight but Fail to Save Building in Early Morning Blaze.

(Special from a Staff Correspondent.)

CAMP UPTON, March 29.—Fire completely destroyed the second largest house of the Knights of Columbus in the camp this morning. At 1 o'clock the entire camp was aroused by three sharp bugle blasts, the alarm for fire. From regiment to regiment, from unit to unit, the call resounded and the soldiers tumbled out and reported "ready" as promptly as if reveille had been blown.

The regimental fire apparatus from the 306th, 308th and 307th Infantry were on the ground as quickly as if the fire fighting game were as familiar to them as to the fire fighters of New York. The building was located on Fifth Street, near Fourth Avenue, close to the barracks of the 305th and 309th Infantry regiments.

NEW YORK BOY AND CHUM WIN FRENCH WAR CROSS

Richard Van Wyck Buel and George Ripley Cutler in U. S. Ambulance Corps.

Among the three officers and eleven men of the United States Army Ambulance Corps just decorated with the War Cross by the French Government were Privates Richard Van Wyck Buel and George Ripley Cutler of Section 642.

Richard Van Wyck Buel is a son of Clarence C. Buel, formerly one of the editors of the Century Magazine. He is a senior at Harvard and has been driving an ambulance since last June. Cutler, whose home is in Boston, is a Yale student.

These two boys saw four months of service under the French at Verdun and along the Aisne. The exploit for which they received the War Cross occurred the last week in February near the scene of the present German drive. They went out then after men who had been gassed and while on their mission were deliberately shelled by the Germans, a dozen projectiles falling about their ambulance and wounding both of them.

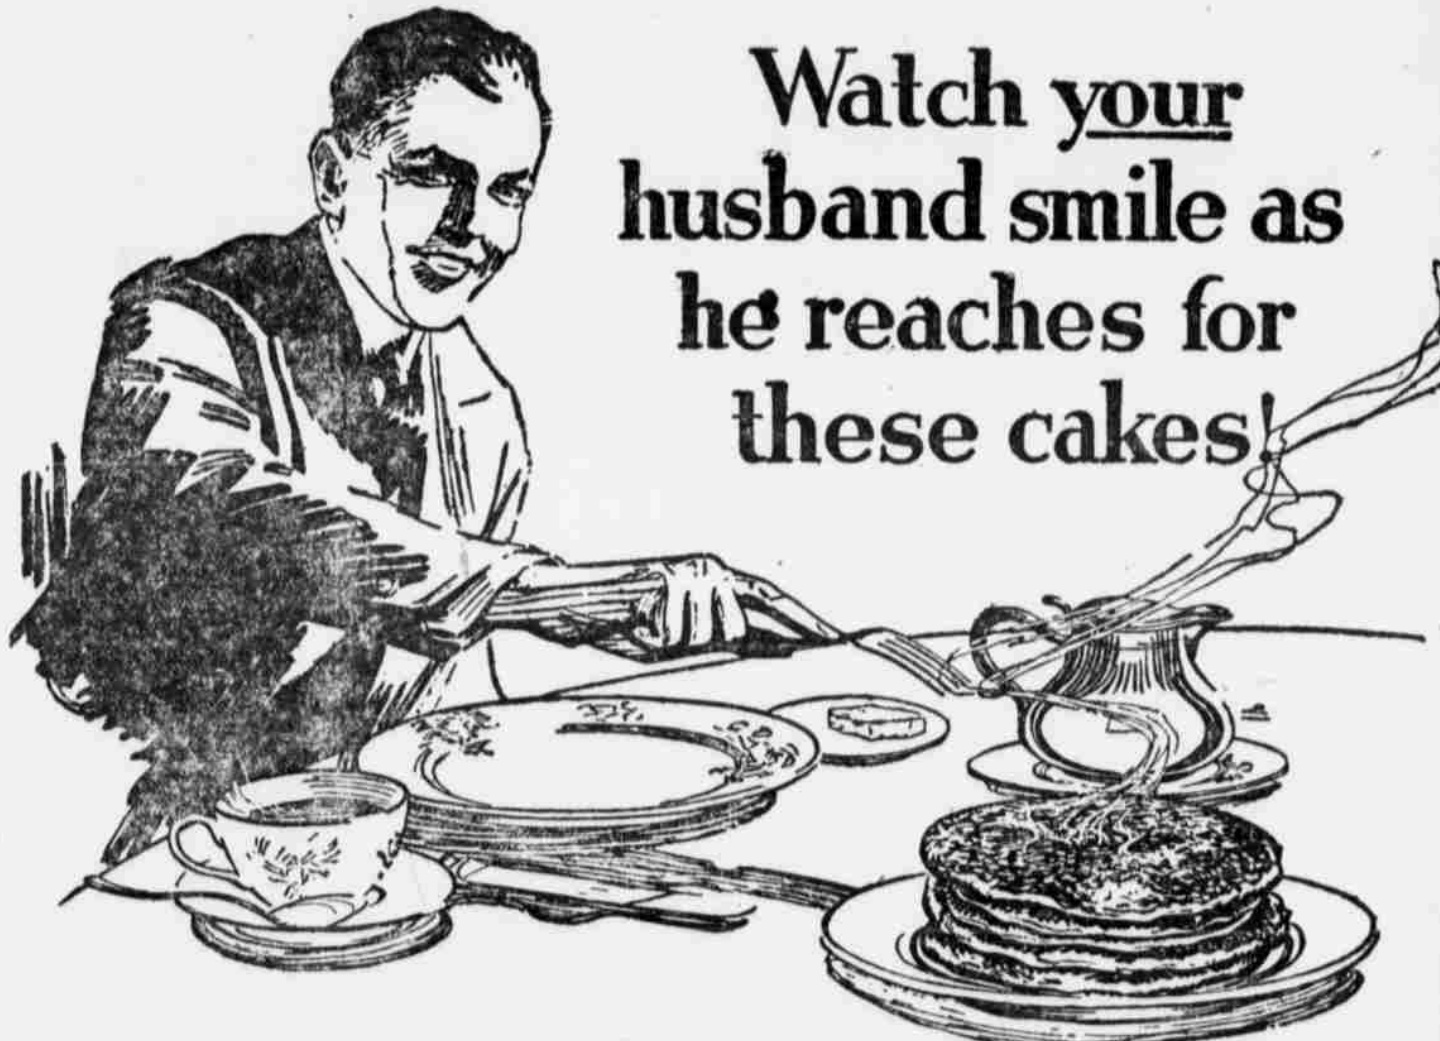

The crosses were pinned upon Buel and Cutler on March 1. News of the distinction reached the Buel family by letter Wednesday.

DIAMONDS
Were Imported by Lamberts Before Prices Rose

Probably it would be a waste of ink and energy to remind you readers of this newspaper that diamonds, like other things, continue to advance in price, but that they also hold their own, and more, too, as the most desired of gems.

What you may not realize (so we are telling you here) is that prices of fine diamonds at Lamberts are lower than elsewhere, because when we bought the diamonds we show you today we got them at much lower prices than we should have to pay today. Because of this and because we import all our diamonds direct, and not through middlemen, our customers and we are independent of present-day quotations.

We mount all our own diamonds in our factory, on the same premises with our plainly fitted store, and incidentally we do not pay a high rent. Neither do we indulge in other large expenses, which, of course, would have to be paid by our customers in the form of high prices.

Let us show you while you are calling some of our original work in diamond fancy rings, from $50.00 up; two-stone diamond rings, from $12.50 up; brooches set with a small diamond, $7.50 up; bangles set with a small diamond, $10.75 up.
